GCBA Charter Member Program Continues to Grow

LINCOLN, Neb. (Dec. 14, 2007) - The Golf Course Builders Association of America's (GCBA) Charter Member Program continues its success with the addition of a new member. MacCurrach Golf Construction, headquartered in Jacksonville, Fla., is the latest organization to join the professional support group.

MacCurrach Golf construction was established in 1987 and has completed over 100 projects located mainly in the Southeast and Midwest. They specialize in renovation and restoration projects.

"The continued growth of our Charter Member Program is important to our organization in maintaining a high level of professionalism in our industry," said GCBA Executive Director Paul Foley. "We continue to encourage more leaders in our industry to become part of this important program."

GCBA charter members are individuals or organizations who have a vested interest in the continuing success and growth of GCBA. By becoming a charter member, individuals or organizations demonstrate their commitment to the principles, professionalism and resources GCBA provides its members and the golf construction industry. Charter members express their support by making a one-time minimum contribution of $10,000 above their annual membership dues.

About the GCBA and the GCBA Foundation

The Golf Course Builders Association of America is a non-profit trade association of the world's foremost golf course builders and leading suppliers to the golf course construction industry. It was founded in the early 1970s and its members represent all segments of the golf course industry. The GCBA Foundation is the charitable arm of the GCBA and a separate, 501(c)(3) organization. The GCBA's national executive office is located in Lincoln, Neb. For more information, visit www.gcbaa.org or call (402) 476-4444.
